PROSPERITY OF THE HECLA MINES.

Mr. H. Knippenberg's Success in Montana—An Enormous Outlay.

A large number of Indianapolis people will be glad to learn of the great success and prosperity of Mr. Henry Knippenberg, of this city, who, though still a citizen of Indianapolis, has spent by far the greater part of his time since 1881 at Glendale, Mont., in charge of the Hecla mining property. A party consisting of Dr. Henry Jameson, John C. McCutcheon, Philip Igoe and William H. Schmidt, returned a few days ago from a trip into the far West, and a point on the party's itinerary was the Hecla mining region. The gentlemen found a healthy development of the property under the management of Mr. Knippenberg. At the time he took charge of it the mines were virtually abandoned, but to-day the property stands second to none in Montana. The town of Glendale, with a population of several hundred depending upon the mines for sustenance, has sprung up in the neighborhood, and during the season of the great silver production, the mines were producing $1,000,000 in the production of silver. Since Mr. Knippenberg took charge the company has expended $2,000,000 for labor, $1,000,000 in the erection of a smelter and $1,000,000 for charcoal, the product all the while more than justifying "this outlay. The Hecla mine is situated on the Lion mountain, about ten miles from the town. Mr. Knippenberg has become very popular in Montana, and has been urged to enter politics, with assurances of leadership, but he has chosen to devote his entire time to the mines. A considerable portion of the Hecla mining stock is owned by Indianapolis people. After inspecting the Hecla mines the Indianapolis people, accompanied by Mr. Knippenberg, returned to the city, and a party of Salt Lake City, U. T., and E. W. Nash, general manager of the Omaha and Grant Smelting Company, made a trip through Yellowstone Park, which they agree was thoroughly enjoyed from start to finish. The party was composed of the most prominent men in that section, placed the Indianapolis party under great obligation through his efforts to make their stay in the West agreeable.

CHARLES OTT'S RETURN.

A Real-Estate Dealer Who Mysteriously Disappeared Turns Up.

Charles Ott, the real-estate dealer who left his home several years ago under peculiar circumstances, has returned to Indianapolis. Some days ago he surprised one of his real-estate friends by walking into his office with a cheery "good-morning." He made himself at home as of old, and, in a lengthy conversation with his friend, related the circumstances of his hurried departure three years before. Ott lived with his family at No. 164 Woodlawn avenue. His disappearance was a great surprise to his friends, and for a year nothing was heard of him. A few months after his departure his wife and children returned to their former home in Kentucky, where Mrs. Ott shortly afterward died. Ott, in his statement to his friends after his return, told a sensational story which involved his domestic affairs. He said that he had lived for the most part in Cincinnati. Among other sensational features disclosed in his narrative was the details of a heavy robbery of which he claimed to have been the victim. He had accumulated considerable property, which before leaving Indianapolis he converted into cash. A day or two before his mysterious disappearance he secreted several thousand dollars in the carriage house at his home, intending to take the money away with him. On the eve of his departure he went to get the cash and found that it had been stolen. He left without reporting the robbery. To a friend he announced his intention of returning to Cincinnati to live.

The new stock of fine Gildemeester & Kroeger Pianos at Bryant's are receiving the unstinted praise of Indianapolis' best musicians and pianists, and judged from the highest musical and mechanical standpoint they deserve all the praise they are truly musical instruments in the fullest sense of the word.

A CUT IN ESTIMATES

CHANGE IN FISCAL YEAR NECESSITATES A NUMBER OF REVISIONS.

Lake Erie & Western Road Will Test the Charter on Sewer Assessments—Street Funds.

The subcommittees of the Council finance committee have been going through the estimates of the different city departments this week, and have made some cuts in them. Yesterday Messrs. Krauss and Colter, the subcommittee to revise the estimates of the Department of Safety, scanned the estimate in this department. They cut the estimate for repairs to buildings from $250 to $500 and that for new hose from $3,200 to $3,010. These cuts were made on account of the change in the time of the beginning of the fiscal year. The board will in fact receive the amount of the estimate as furnished by them. In the case of the repairs, $2,000 will be immediately appropriated, to be expended between the present time and the first of the year when the department will receive the amount of the appropriations made for the fiscal year. In the case of the hose, $2,300 will be expended before Jan. 1.

On the recommendation of Superintendent Powell, the appointment of Joseph Heide-man as patrolman was confirmed, he having secured the probationary period to the satisfaction of the superintendent. William L. Celnar was dropped from the force on account of the failure of the superintendent to recommend him.

Special police powers were granted W. J. Caldwell for the Big Four freight house and yard, and to Newton Jackson of the Van Camp packing house. The board also asked for bids for furnishing meals to the prisoners at the police station.

ATTACKS THE CITY CHARTER.

Lake Erie & Western Seeks to Avoid Paying a Sewer Assessment.

The Lake Erie & Western Railroad Company has begun suit in the federal court to test the legality of the assessment against its property for the Georgia-street sewer. William Bossert, the contractor who built the sewer, is joined as a party to the suit. The railroad company was assessed $102.84 for the sewer, and alleges that the assessment against its property is invalid because the section of the charter under which it is made is unconstitutional. The company alleges the section of the charter to be contrary to the fourteenth amendment to the Constitution of the United States. In that it takes property without due process of law. The complaint alleges that the property owner is not allowed a hearing before any tribunal, and that the assessment is arbitrary. It also alleges that this section of the city charter is invalid because it takes private property for public uses without compensation.

BILLS ARE OUTSTANDING.

The Board of Works Must Have a Certain Appropriation.

In its estimates for fixtures the Board of Public Works asked for $500. This amount was cut by the Mayor and controller to $100. The board says this amount will not be sufficient, as it has bills outstanding for more than that amount. The bills outstanding are to H. P. Wasson & Co. and to Eastman, Schleicher & Lee for carpeting and furnishing the city clerk's office and the Police Court room, and amount to $244.60. The city charter provides that no board or city official shall contract a debt on behalf of the city in excess of the amount appropriated for the purpose for which the debt is contracted, and that the finance committee says it has no power to increase the estimate for the purpose of additional appropriation for this purpose if it is recommended by the Mayor and controller.

Cheap Cement Walks.

A city contractor says that cement walks are contracted for at figures which make it impossible to do good work and not lose money. The city engineer says the work is being done very cheaply in this city, but that the work is not shoddy. Inspectors are kept busy watching the work done. The city engineer found that the cement walks in the curbings. The specifications leave a wide margin in the matter of the curbing, and some of the curbs have not been dressed as they should.

Street Funds Very Low.

If the estimates are not approved and the appropriation ordinance passed at the next meeting of the Council the street-repair fund will be exhausted before the new appropriation is available. The fund is now about exhausted, there being but enough money on hand to pay the men for one more week.

POSING, DANCING AND MARCHING.

Rehearsals of Young Women for "The Last Days of Pompeii."

In the rooms of the State Board of Agriculture last night were a hundred or more young women practicing posing, dancing and marching under the direction of Mme. Rose. From the hundreds of applicants she had selected those whose comeliness of feature made them desirable for the purpose for which they were wanted. At the same time, out at Lincoln Park, several hundred men, under the direction of Mr. Rose, were performing various evolutions so as to fit them to be the ideal representatives of Roman soldiers. Some of them, perhaps, were not as graceful as they might be, and there were various mishaps, but the method of drilling them is so exact and thorough that they will soon become experts. These young men and women are being trained for the production of "The Last Days of Pompeii," the first performance of which will be given next Monday night. In addition to these the services of many professionals are necessary, and a number of them arrived from Dayton, O., yesterday, where they have been engaged in a like manner. Among them are premier danseuses, corymbes and specialty performers. The cost of the latter are for the purpose of representing the games and pastimes of ancient Pompeii as a part of the general representation of life in that city. Among those who arrived yesterday are the Lenton troupe, famous for acrobatic feats; three Martinezs, who do a remarkable aerial act; La Pierre Brothers, French clowning; La Petite Evelyne, a wonderful child performer, and Miss Jean Weitzman, a high wire walker, whose act was one of the features of the world's fair last year.

The great picture, which gives a panoramic representation of Pompeii, and which was painted especially for the production in this city and will be used for the first time here, arrived yesterday, and the work of putting it upon the frames which had been previously made is now well in progress. Scores of men worked all night last night at this, and they expect to have it completed by to-night. The armor, costumes and two carloads of properties and effects are also here and a large force is engaged in getting them ready. The first general rehearsal at the park will take place to-morrow night, nobody being admitted within the inclosure except the participants.

The local managers of "The Last Days of Pompeii" are confident that there will be a great crowd here on Monday to witness the first performance, attracted not only by the spectacle, but by the political day observations and the opening day of the fall trotting meeting. All cities and towns around the city are being visited by the day observations and the opening day of the fall trotting meeting. All cities and towns around the city are being visited by the day observations and the opening day of the fall trotting meeting.

Reserved seats for the opening performance of Pompeii will be placed on sale at the Big Four ticket office, No. 100 Washington street, this morning. There are in all about 1,500 reserved seats and sixty-five private boxes, each for four persons.

Chloroformed and Robbed.

T. C. Walton, a poultry dealer, whose headquarters are in a tent on Virginia avenue, known as No. 529, reported to the police yesterday that Monday night he was chloroformed and robbed of $100 and a gold watch. He sleeps in the tent, and on retiring Monday night he placed a money bag with the money under his pillow. His tent was in a very quiet place, and the rest of his clothing, hanging on a chair. On awakening yesterday morning he felt that he had been chloroformed and robbed. His vest and trousers were missing, but they were afterwards found in an alley not far away.

THE GOOD CITIZENSHIP MEETING.

Large Delegation Expected at the Convention To-Day.

A meeting will be held to-day in Masonic Temple by representatives of the Y. P. S. C. of Epworth League, Baptist Union, Knights of Father Mathew (Catholic) and Brotherhood of St. Andrew (Episcopalian) from over the State to form a new organization, to be known as "The Good Citizenship League of Indiana." Since the call for the meeting, which was sent out several weeks ago, letters have been received which give the committee having the meeting in charge reason to believe that there will be a large attendance. Reduced rates have been granted by the railroads. Indications are that the largest delegations will come from Evansville, Franklin, Fort Wayne, Richmond and the large cities in the West.

HE MET A SHARPER

QUICK CONFIDENCE GAME WORKED ON J. W. McKINNON, OF BOSTON.

Mr. McKinnon Incidentally Drops a Little Remark About Speculation in Iron Hall Claims.

J. W. McKinnon, a traveling agent for the Columbian Loan Company, of Boston, told the superintendent of police, last night, of a confidence game worked upon him by Charles Edwards, who claimed to be a salesman for an Eastern liquor house. Incidentally, McKinnon informed Mr. Powell that he was sent here by his company to join Charles Martindale, president of the School Board, in buying Iron Hall claims. McKinnon met Edwards on a train from Cincinnati, last week, and avoided the attempt of the latter to engage in conversation. After reaching this city, Edwards, a few days ago, called on McKinnon at the Union Station and after ascertaining that the Boston man was to stop at the Bates House, he concluded to register at the same hotel. After that time the two were together frequently, although McKinnon insists that his companions' advances towards an acquaintance at first awakened a suspicion. On Monday night the two, in company with a friend of McKinnon's, purchased a few sociable hours. The next day McKinnon, after making a few deals, found himself in need of $100. A few minutes after 1 o'clock in the afternoon he telegraphed to his company in Boston for that amount, asking that it be sent by telegraph to him at the Palmer House, in Chicago. Edwards evidently saw the telegram, according to McKinnon's statement, for at 1:30 o'clock Edwards sent a telegram to the same company over the Postal wire, McKinnon having used the Western Union. This message read:

"Just telegraphed you to wire $100 to Palmer House, Chicago. Why don't you telegraph $150 here through the American Express Company, waiving identification?" McKinnon was away from the hotel until 3:30 o'clock that afternoon, and at 3 o'clock a reply telegram from the Boston company was received at the Bates House. Edwards saw the messenger deliver it to the clerk and sauntering up in a careless way he asked the clerk if McKinnon had been around during the afternoon.

"No," replied the clerk, "but here is a telegram for him."

"There he is out on the sidewalk," suddenly remarked Edwards, craning his neck towards the entrance. "Give me the message and I will take it to him." The clerk had seen the two together a great deal, so he handed the message to Edwards, who left the hotel. In a few minutes Edwards was at the express office, where he exhibited the telegram, which stated that the money had been sent. The company had received instructions to waive identification, and it was Edwards' matter for Edwards to obtain the $150. McKinnon, upon his arrival at the hotel, found that Edwards had obtained the money and departed. McKinnon described his companion to the police as a man of medium build, about five feet six inches in height, of dark complexion, wearing a black mustache and a cutaway coat with a single-colored pattern. The description of the fugitive was sent to Chicago. McKinnon thinks that Edwards is a sharp.

Mr. Martindale's Statement.

The statement made by McKinnon that he had been sent here from Boston to join Charles Martindale in purchasing Iron Hall claims is the first general information furnished that there has been speculation in these claims. Mr. Martindale is very close to John P. Frenzel, who has all the Iron Hall funds on deposit in his bank. Mr. Martindale was seen at his home last night. He said:

"It is true that Mr. McKinnon is here on business for the Columbian Loan and Trust Company. He has been buying a considerable number of unmatured certificates from the Eastern Iron Hall holders and their agent is here to file the claims with Receiver Bailey and to prove them in court. As the attorney for the Columbia company I have assisted him in filing his certificates before the receiver. I have nothing to do with the buying of claims and do not know what is being said for them. No claims are to be bought here. None have been bought and the company does not want them."

Didn't Think He Was Drunk.

W. M. Freyberger was found helplessly drunk in Fairview Park yesterday afternoon by special policeman G. W. McCall. Freyberger was taken before Justice Daniels and arraigned on a charge of drunkenness. Although he was unable to stand, he pleaded with the justice to allow him to get the testimony of several saloonkeepers to the effect that he was not intoxicated, but in vain. He was taken to the police station this morning, and in default of furnishing bail was placed in the county jail.

Sale of Washington-Street Property.

James Haslam yesterday sold to Frank L. Rouse the building occupied by Turpin's five and ten-cent store, on Washington street, between Illinois and Meridian streets. The lot upon which the building stands is sixteen feet wide and the consideration of the sale was $2,500.

Charged with Stealing Tobacco.

Andrew Douglas, who is charged with stealing tobacco and other articles from cars at a station on the Big Four, was brought to the city yesterday by Detectives Fort and Hobbs and placed in the police station.

Three Buildings Condemned.

Building Inspector Penberst yesterday condemned the buildings at Nos. 179 and 181 South Capitol avenue, and also that at No. 219 South Noble street.

TALKED ON REFORMS

FIRST DAY OF THE UNIVERSALISTS' STATE CONVENTION.

Attendance Is Small—Liquor Question and Other Timely Topics of the Period Discussed.

The forty-seventh annual State convention of Universalists and the Ministerial Circle of the Universalist Church opened yesterday in the new church at the corner of New Jersey and Sixth streets. There was a small attendance. The ministers present were Rev. J. B. Forsher, of Pendleton, who presided at the convention; Rev. C. F. Bushnell, of Roann, who acted as secretary; Rev. H. M. Brown, of Dublin; Rev. J. F. Carney, of Muncie; Rev. S. B. Grandy, of this city; Rev. Henry Groves, of Rome; Rev. H. Lewellen, of Lafayette; Rev. M. L. Pope, of Vincennes; Rev. H. O. Sommers, of this city; Rev. J. O. W. McCord, of Mount Carmel; Rev. G. B. Ross, of New Castle, and Rev. G. B. Ross, of Manchester. The session at 2 o'clock opened with prayer, followed by the reading of reports from the State of the State. Most of these were of an encouraging nature, with accessions of membership and growing interest reported. After a short recess the paper of the afternoon, on the subject, "What Should Be the Attitude of the Church Towards the Reforms of the Day?" was read by Rev. Mr. Houghton, who had considered this subject, but he was not present. Rev. Lewellen, of Lafayette, an able speaker, addressed the convention on the same subject. He said at the beginning that "there is too much talk in the pulpits of to-day on theology, and too little on anthropology and sociology. There are no teachings of the Saviors on the forms of to-day, such as are used in the Roman Catholic and Episcopal churches," he said. "When the young man mentioned in the Bible asked what he should do to be saved, he was not told to go through certain forms, but the laws laid down were for social life. The review of the forms of the day he mentioned the liquor question, saying that 'the minister who has not announced his stand on this subject of the liquor traffic has not done his duty, and has not been doing the work of Christ.' Another evil was the use of tobacco, and in speaking of this Mr. Lewellen said he thought some of the ministers of the church were not any too particular about the use of it themselves. He thought that the smoking of cigarettes by young boys was ruining them in more ways than one. He would not say that the use of tobacco in pipe years would bring on the bad results that earlier use would, but he thought that no one should use it in any form. A third reform of the day was that of labor and capital. No man, whether employer or employee, should make the other feel that he is his enemy. Mr. Lewellen rather favors the Henry George theory of single tax and land holding. His argument was that man was brought to this world without any consent of his own, and that he should be entitled to enough of the land to stand on.

"We cannot have happy homes and educated children unless we make the external things that should be," he said. "We cannot preach faithfully until we pay attention to this thing. Many ministers think they will leave these external things to the parties have to settle. The Lord, and God knows, too much evil. The churches should stand for all reform and not be silent."

At the close of the remarks by Mr. Lewellen, Mr. J. F. Carney led in the discussion. He said he was prepared, notwithstanding he gave an excellent talk on temperance, agreeing with Mr. Lewellen in all that had been said. He related an instance of two small boys who were found drunk one night in the city of Brooklyn. The third reform of the day was that of a leading man there said that he would prosecute the man who sold them the drink if he took his last cent. When the time came the man failed to put in an appearance, and the case was dismissed. When Mr. Carney asked the man why he had allowed the case to go, the answer was that the saloon keepers of the land, from the Atlantic to the Pacific, were banded together, and what affected one affected all. When he went into the case expecting the help of the churches and right-minded citizens, he found himself alone. The point was that the churches did not take enough interest in the reform of the day.

Mr. Houghton being absent, a vote was taken for a speaker for the afternoon and the choice was for Mr. Lewellen to take Mr. Houghton's place, and also in his own, which was announced on the programme. This he did, and for a while the meeting spoke extensively on an increased audience. The meetings will continue through Friday afternoon. The day evening the church in which the convention is being held will be dedicated. The programme for to-day is as follows:

9 o'clock, platform meeting; "What Constitutes Religious Devotion?" by Rev. M. L. Pope, of Vincennes; leader; business meeting of the Ministerial circle; paper, "The Higher Criticism," by Rev. C. F. Bushnell, of Roann, Ind.

Afternoon—3:30 o'clock, organization of Sunday school convention; reports from Sunday schools; reports of officers; paper, "The Successful Sunday School," by H. R. Milhouse, of Indianapolis; paper, "How to Teach the Temperance Lesson," by Rev. W. McCord, of Mount Carmel; election of officers; meeting of Young People's Christian Union convention; reports from unions and from State officers.

Evening—7:30, sermon by Rev. J. F. Carney, of Muncie.
